

Preparing Phoenix for Dinner

We threw open our door
and it walked right into the kitchen.

We threw open the oven.
It stepped inside.

We turned it on to 450
and we heard a cooing and murmurs.

When we eat
we'll lose our tongues.

Then we'll grow new tongues, better ones.

--By Christopher Citro. First published in Stone Table Review.